THE GREAT OCEAN HIGHWAY.

Constitutionality of the New Shipping Act-Has Congress a Right to Control the Municipal Regulations of New York !- Interesting Question of Constitutional Law-Decision Reserved.

In September last two men, named Anderson and Kopper, were convicted in the United States Circuit Court, before Judge Benedict, on a charge of having, in the capacity of boarding house agents or runners, and without the permission of the master, boarded the German bark Augusta Tetjens, before she had reached the place of her final destination in the port of New York. The section of the Shipping act which these men have been found guilty of violating is the sixty-second, and reads as follows:—

That any person who, not being in the United States service, and not being duly authorized by law for the purpose, goes on board any ship about to arrive at the place of the redstination before her actual arrival, and before she has been completely meored, without permission of the master, shall for every such offence incur a penalty not exceeding $200, and shall be liable to unprisonment for any period not exceeding six months, and the master or person in charge of said ship may, take any such person so going on beard as aforcard into castely and deliver him up to any constable or police officer, see.

Sentence upon the prisoners was suspended.

But their counsel, land, an encoupantity to raise until their counsel had an opportunity to raise questions affecting the constitutionality of the law; and yesterday the case came up in the United States Circuit Court before Judge Benedict. General Davies, United States Assistant District Attorney, appeared to aphold the conviction and the constitutionality of the law, and Mr. Robert Andrews conference.

Andrews contra.

Mr. R. Andrews made a lengthened argument on behalf of the decendants, in the course of which he maintained that this law was unconstitutional, because it put into the hands of the master of a vessel the power of arresting a person without warrant. The accused were not arrested by the master of person in charge of the ship. Did he take them before a magistrate to be dealt with as the law directed? In that respect there was no compliance with the act. There was no evidence to show that the men went on board the vessel without the permission of the master, who was on shore at the time. Counsel further contended that no proceeding could be had against the defendants by indictment.

Judge Benedict replied that there was a clause in the act which provided that if the fine imposed under it were not paid the party could be committed to prison.

Mr. Andrews said that when the offender was taken before a justice of the peace what was to be done with him? ARGUMENT OF COUNSEL.

Benedict-To be dealt with for committing ome offence.

Mr. Andrews contended that he might sue for a cenalty by giving information to the District Atorney. The fine was to be so much as the Court hould determine. The question was whether the aw could be carried out at all or was a mere pullity. He had a right to go through the act from penalty by giving information to the District Attorney. The Bne was to be so much as the Court should determine. The question was whether the law could be carried out at all or was a mere molity. He had a right to go through the act from beginning to end to see whether it was possible to carry it out at all. He could not see in the whole act anything that gave the Court power by indictment to prosecute for this offence. This law was never intended to apply to vessels belonging to any other country but the United States. It was preposterous to say that America could pass laws to regulate what should be done on the ships of other nations. Could it be held for a moment that foreign ships coming into our ports were to be regulated by laws enacted in the Congress of the United States? The vessel in question, which the defendants were charged with boarding in this port, was a German vessel. She salled under the German fag, and it was impossible to hold that the law to which he was referring applied to other than the ships of this country. Independent of the question that they had no right whatever to make this law apply to foreign vessels, it was clearly the intent of Congress that it should deal with American ships alone. This German vessel had arrived at her place of destination, in the port of New York, and if she went to another place—the pier at the foot of Desbrosses Street—to discharge her cargo, it at was a matter of no consequence. She bad anchored in the waters of the harbor of New York; she had arrived at the port of her final destination when the prisoners boarded her; but His Honor at the trial ruled that she had not arrived at her actual place of destination until she had anchored at the pier at the foot of Desbrosses street. He (Mr. Andrews) submitted that that ruling was erroneous. What right had Congress to violate the constitution by passing a law to regulate the affairs of this State—a law regulating what should be done on board without leave. As to what the offence which the prisoners had committe

INTERESTING CASE IN FRENCH JURISPRUDENCE.

The Obligations of Relatives by Marriage Under the French Law-An Interesting Franco-American Case-Story of the Marriage and Claims of the Baron de Brimont - An Appeal, and Decision Reserved.

A case of a novel and interesting character is now awaiting decision by Judge Woodruff, of the United States Circuit Court. The facts of the case are there:-In the year 1868 a marriage took place at Paris between the Baron Gaston de Brimont and Miss Pauline Penniman, the daughter of James F. Penniman, of this city. The family name of de Brimont is Ruinart, a name well known in America from its connection with a favorite quality of champagne which bears the familiar brand "Ruinart et fils, Verzenay." The Baroness de Brimont died in less than a year after her marriage, leaving behind her an infant daughter, who is still living with her father, the Baron, in Paris. The Baron had a noble name, but no lortune. During the married life of their daughter, the Baroness, Mr. and Mrs. Penniman gave the Baron an allowance at the rate of ten thousand dollars in gold per year; but after the death of the Baroness her parents refused to make any further provision for the support of the Baron and his little daughter, their grandchild. The Baron, a few months after his wife's decease, began an action in one of the courts of France to compel Mr, and Mrs. Penniman to make an allowance to him for his maintenance and that of his child. This action was brought under the peculiar law of France, which provides that a parent who has means shall give pecuniary assistance to his needy child, that a wealthy child shall contribute to the support of his impoverished parent, and that inthers-in-law and mothers-in-law and sons-in-law and daughters-in-law owe one another the same duty of pecuniary assistance as though their connections were of blood instead of marriage. This obligation upon reintions by marriage continues, however, only so fong as there shall be a child living, who is lineally descended, both from the person who demands and the person who is called upon to render material aid under the law in question. The Baron de Brimont alleged that he was poor and that the Pennimans had abundant means, and these facts appearing, the French Court rendered judgment that Mr. and Mrs. Penniman should jointly and severally pay to the Baron de Brimont an allowance of $5,600 per year, $1.200 to be retained by him for his own support and $2,400 to be expended by him for the support and education of his daughter. From this judgment of the Court below Mr. and Mrs. Penniman appealed to the highest Court in France, which affirmed the judgment of the Court below Mr. and Mrs. Penniman then came to America, leaving no property in France out of which the French judgment could be collected. The Baron then caused an action to be brought upon the French gluggment against Mr. and Mrs. Penniman then came to America, leaving no property in France out of which the French judgment of his former son-lo-law and lowance which has no extra territorial effect, and to lowance at the rate of ten thousand dollars in gold per year; but after the death of the Baroness her could demand from him.

On behalf of de Brimoni it was contended that the fact that New York omitted to impose the duty of reciprocal assistance upon father-in-law and son-in-law did not make the execution of the French judgment contrary to the public policy of this country; that the judgment, having been pronunced by a court having periodiction of the parties and the subject matter was conclusive as to the merits; that the judgment was to be executed as a foreign decree for alimony would be; that foreign judgments were in England and in this country regarded as debts, and upon that principle actions upon them were sustained, the only detences being fraud and want of jurisdiction; that it was of no importance that the French law differed from the law of the United States, it being conceded that the case was properly decladed according to the law of France.

Decision reserved. George M. Van Hosen and C. P. Hoffman appeared for the Baron de Brimont and Frederick R. Condert and R. H. Bowne for Mr. Penniman.

THE ANDRIE WIFE HOMICIDE.

Continuation of Testimony for the Defence-Medical Experts on the Stand-They Say the Prisoner Has Emotional Insanity-The Case To Be Summed Up on Monday.

The trial of Emil Andrie for shooting his wife was continued yesterday in the General Sessions, before Judge Bedford.

Noel Stephanie was examined in behalf, of the prisoner. The witness was a foreman on the Erie Railroad and hired Andrie to work for him on the 22d of May, and he continued to do so till the 7th of June; Andrie told him one day that when he went to his room in Mott street he found it empty, adding, "I never had anything wrong with her, and she will probably come back again, but it will be too late for her; I always loved her, and I don't know the reason why she left me; she took everything with her;" the witness procured the prisoner a boarding place over in Jersey City; Andrie wanted to go out and find where his children everything with her;" the witness procured the prisoner a boarding place over in Jersey City; Andrie wanted to go out and find where his children were; he went, but could not get into the place; on the following Sunday he said he saw his children, but he could not find the wife; this conversation was on the last of May or the lat of June; sation was on the last of May or the lat of June; the last day he worked he threw down the shovel and asked to be paid for his time; he said, "It is not possible for me to stand any longer; I cannot eat or sleep or drink; I am sick and cannot stand up any longer;" the witness recommended him to rest a couple of days; Andrie said that he would probably go back to France; that morning (the 7th of June) he went through the field shaking bis arms just like a crazy man, talking to himself; Andrie was a first-class workman.

August Wagner testified that in September, 1871, he went to Hudson Grove with Mr. Simott and met Mr. and Mrs. Andrie and children and Lagneau at dinner; Lagneau was presented to lim as the brother of Mue. Andrie; during the dinner he heard the children call Lagneau "flittle father;" the witness remarked that Mme. Andre did not "thee?" and "thou" Lagneau, which would have been the case if he had been her brother; the next time he saw Andrie was at his (the witness) own house, les Mott street; at the end of September, at a cord party in Andrie's house, the witness saw a disturbance between Lagneau and the prisoner, who told him to leave the house; Lagneau replied he did not know who was more the master of the house, he or Andrie; on another occasion the witness saw all the neighbors out of their rooms, with lamps in their hands and Andrie and Lagneau said in the foor in the hands of a policeman; he let Lagneau go with the witness; Lagneau said to Tartierre, "Come down with your cow; thou art but a coward;" Andrie was present; Lagneau said to Andrie on other of the prisoner while the hinter was confined in the roahs after the murder; he wish the children, go to Fra shooting. He characterized it as wild, erratic, and said that he had placed a policeman opposite the cell door to prevent the prisoner harming anybody.

John B. Lichtz, a French lawyer, testified that he sent for the prisoner and told him that his wife wanted a separation; he replied that he could not consent on account of the disgrace it would bring upon the children: finally said that his wife could do as she pleased without a separation; the deceased, when informed of that, reiterated her determination to have a full separation; this was on or about the 6th of June.

Thomas Viznon testified to the prisoner coming to him on a Sunday in June and telling him that his wife, with a Mr. Bolsson, had gone away, and taken everything in the house with her, even to the cooking utensis; she had taken the children as well; the prisoner went with the witness to a man's house on Fourteenth street, where they met Boisson; the accused demanded to be told of the whereabouts of his children, but Blesson refused to tell; Andrie threatened to throw him out of the window, whereupon Boisson replied, "Do what you please, I cannot tell you."

Joseph strauss, a cterk in the Police Department, swore that he conversed with the prisoner in French after his arrest, and he always complatued of a pain in his head and inability to sleep; his manners were very affectionate when he talked about his children; he seemed at other times to be very nervous; his eyes were rolling around, and the witness thought that he was not in a right condition of mind.

Henry Cordier, keeper of a restaurant, also gave testimony relative to the prisoner's state of mind two days before the killing; Andrie was very noisy and violent, and the witness thought that he was not in a right condition of mind.

Mrs. Greenburgh deposed that she told Andrie that his wife was a bad woman, and the reason why she told him that was the little man (Laznean) was always there, night and day; she told him that two years ago.

Mudame Bailard, who employed Mrs. Andrie in making embr

Mr. Charles W. Brooke read a certificate of Dr. Goulay to the effect that Andrie was in the hospital suffering from malignant smallows, and that when he was discharged he was very much exhausted.

Dr. Thadens M. B. Cross, an expert on the subject of mental diseases, was the next witness. Mr. Brooke conducted the examination of the Doctor, which was very lengthy, in a very able manner. He thorougaly exhausted the subject of insanity in all its phases by the questions propounded to the witness, which were similar to those asked in the McFarland, the Laura Fair and other celebrated trials of a recent date.

Dr. Cross was in attendance during the trial of Andrie, and also examined the prisoner in the Tombs by well-known scientific tests. He was asked, in his judgment, as a medical expert, after such physical examination, and hearing from the the hirs of witnesses the actions and conduct of Andrie before and after the killing, whether he was sane or insane, and he pronounced him insane, stating that the peculiar type of his unsoundness was emotional insanity.

Colonel Fellows subjected the witness to a courteous but rigid cross-examination.

Dr. Henry Goulden, who assisted Dr. Cross, and who also listened to the testimony, coincided in Dr. Cross' statement, and gave it as his professional judgment that Andrie was insane when he shot his wife.

The Court adjourned at a late hour in the afternoon till Monday, when counsel will proceed with the closing argument.

BROOKLYN COURTS.

SUPREME COURT-SPECIAL TERM.

The Murderer of Policeman Donahue-Application for a Writ of Error and Stay of Proceedings. Before Judge Gilbert.

Colonel Spencer yesterday made application to Judge Gibert for a writ of error and stay of pro-ceedings in the case of Henry Rogers, who was sentenced to be hanged on the 6th of December for the murder of Policeman Domahue, in the Eastern District, in July last, Colonel Spenger said he was chitical to the writ of error as a matter of right, but the Court thought not. Comsel thought he had, but not under the law as a matter of right to the stay of proceedings; but if he did not get the stay, the writ of error would be of little use if he had to argue it at General Term after the prisoner was dead and buried. The first point was that the verdict that Domahue died from a single how induced by Rogers was not sustained by the evidence. There was uncontradicted evidence to show that more than one blow was inspicted, and it did not appear which blow caused death. Counsel contended that the murder of Policeman Donahue, in the on this one question he had a right to go to General Term and that the Court should give him an opportunity to do so. The second point raised was that there was no evidence to show the instrument which caused death. An indictment charging that a man came to his death by a piece of wood could not be sustained by groot that he came to his death by a stone bettle. Colonel Spencer raised the point that the lurer, John H. Rawlins, was improperly drawn and sworn. The panel was exhausted and curing the call the names of absentees had been had aside. When the panel was exhausted the names of the absentees were called again without having been put into the box and drawn at hazard. The other points raised by Colonel Spencer were regarding alleged errors in the Judge's charge. charge.

District Attorney Britton responded briedy, arguing that not one of the points raised by prisener's counsel was worthy of consideration.

Judge Gibbert took the papers and will render a decision early next week.
